CQG - REFERENCE FOR LEAD EIS CONSULTANT

CQG Consulting is engaged as Mitchell Ports' lead environmental consultant for a number of proposed barging and transhipping projects in Australia.

CQG's team members go beyond their role of professional advisors and typical consultants. They ensure the best chance of project approval through working closely with their clients, keeping abreast of political and social drivers and interacting frequently with authorities.

The CQG team has excellent skills and a track record in project management, community consultation, stakeholder relations and understanding of the EIS reporting requirements.

We have found that CQG's reputation with all levels of government and company director Patrice Brown's relationship with bureaucrats to be very valuable avoiding unnecessary delays and surprises through the EIS process.

I have no hesitation in recommending CQG for lead EIS consultant roles.
